The Ministry of Finance has adopted Russian accounting standards. Accounting entries are recorded in line with the Chart of Accounts and Instructions for application which has been adopted by the Ministry of Finance. Statutory financial statements to be prepared on a standalone basis include: the balance sheet, statement of financial results, statement of changes in equity, statement of cash flows, and notes to the financial statements.

The reporting period is the calendar year from 1 January to 31 December.

Financial statements are annually submitted to the entity's owners, the Federal Statistics Service and tax authorities. Annual financial statements should be submitted to the Federal Statistics Service and to the tax authorities within three months after year's end. Russian legislation may also require submissions to other authorities. Interim financial statements should be prepared on time and submitted to authorities mentioned in Russian legislation (for instance, the financial statements of insurance companies and issuers). Furthermore, an entity may establish interim periods at its owners' discretion. Consolidated financial statements should be prepared according to International Financial Reporting Standards (IFRS) [Federal Law No 208-FZ "On Consolidated Financial Statements"]. Securities issuers should publish standalone financial statements. Consolidated financial statements must be published.

AUDITING

Auditing requirements are set out in Federal Law No 307-FZ "On Auditing". The Ministry of Finance has adopted these standards on auditing.

The automobile industry is one of the main sectors of the Russian economy, leading in terms of its turnover all of the other mechanical engineering sectors. However, the direct contribution of the automobile industry to the Russian GDP is not very large – approximately 1%. Nevertheless, the industry employs more than 150 thousand people. Furthermore, the automobile industry creates up to 4.5 to 5 million jobs in the chemical, metallurgical and electronic industries, the production of automobile components, and a number of other sectors of the economy, the well-being of which is directly connected to the functioning of the automobile industry.

In 2012, the Russian Federation produced 1.85 million passenger cars, 562.1 thousand of which (-9% compared to the 2011 results) are Russian-brand cars and 1,287.9 thousand (+22% compared to the 2011 results) are cars of foreign brands. Also, there were 380,000 cars of other types produced, including trucks and specialty vehicles. In 2012, the overall automobile market comprised 2,759 thousand passenger cars, which makes it the sixth in the world in terms of sales.
